KEEP HENS COMFORTABLE AND THEY'LL LAY BETTER

Your hens will be more comfortable and they will produce more eggs if they are well fed and housed. If they are, well fed and housed, says Extension poultry specialists at VPI.

In order to keep your hens comfortable, the poultry specialists explain, you should close all openings in your house except those in front of the house which provide ventilation. Open and close these windows and ventilators according to the weather. Be sure there are no cracks or other openings of any kind that will permit drafts. But you should also see that there are openings 2 to 4 inches of good ventilation above the floor. Have plenty of windows in the building and allow at least 10 inches of roosting space for each bird.

If your birds are more than 4 months old and are producing less than 55 eggs per 100 birds, it may be advisable to cull out the poorest birds, your hen house to "sweat" during short winter days to 15 or 16 hours. Local poultry specialists point out.

I have been wonderfully blessed in being restored to active life after being crippled in nearly every joint in my body and with muscular soreness from head to feet. I had Rheumatoid Arthritis and other forms of Rheumatism, hands deformed and my ankles were set.

Limited space prohibits telling you more here but if you will write me, I will reply at once and tell you how I received this wonderful relief.

Blue Hornets Play Bedford Friday Night

The Appomattox Blue Hornets will be seeking their fourth straight league game Friday night when they meet a strong Bedford High School team at the Town Ball Park. Games between these teams in the past have been close and hard fought and the game tomorrow night should be no exception, and should show local fans a fine brand of football.

The Blue Hornets downed Brookville before a large homecoming day crowd last Friday night, by a score of 53 to 13. The touchdowns were made by the following boys: Alton Smith scored three touchdowns, two by passes from John Rothgeb and one on a reverse; Teddy Mitchell scored one touchdown on a runback of a kick-off, and also kicked five extra points; Boots Carter scored one touchdown on a recovered Brookville fumble; Dietz Rothgeb scored three touchdowns on passes from John Rothgeb, his brother. All in all, this was Appomattox's greatest display of offensive power of the season. On defense, the entire Appomattox line, consisting of Jerry George, Tommie O'Brien, Garland Doss, Ralph Harris, John Paulette, Claude Moore, Boots Carter, Jimmy Harper, and Alton Smith played well.

FORMAL OPENING

Simpson's Food Market, on Church St., Appomattox, will have a formal opening this Friday. This store was formerly Arrington's Market.

Appomattox voters will go to the polls next Tuesday, Nov. 2, to participate in a state general election. There has been a minimum of interest in the election here due to no contest for the re-election of the incumbent Fourth District Congressman, and the generally conceded reelection of A. Willis Robertson to the U. S. Senate. A very light vote seems indicated.

Hon. Watkins M. Abbitt, has no opposition for re-election to Congress, but his friends are urging a sizeable vote of confidence in him. Mr. Abbitt has been especially active during his present term in matters pertaining to the interest of the farmers, and he is well up in rank on the House Agriculture Committee.

In addition to the ballot for the election of a senator and a representative in Congress, there will be a second ballot in Tuesday's election. This will be a for or against vote on a proposed constitutional amendment making possible the use of state Retirement Fund money to supplement Literary Fund money available for loans to localities for school construction.

In the state, contests for Congress in the Ninth, Sixth and Tenth districts have attracted attention, largely due to the efforts of Democrats to recapture these districts from incumbent Republicans. Predictions are that Democrats will win in at least two of these three districts, the ninth and tenth. In the sixth, the Republican incumbent is generally given an even chance to win.

Local political leaders are urging all eligible voters to go to the polls next Tuesday.
